International Association For Adolescent Health

IAAH is a multidisciplinary, non-government organization which aims to improve the health and wellbeing of 10-24 year olds across the world. Established in 1987, IAAH works in partnership with others - especially national adolescent health organizations and young people themselves - to foster understanding of the importance of adolescent health. IAAH has a particular focus on improving adolescents' access to universal health care, supporting training and research in adolescent health, and building the capacity of communities and countries to improve adolescent health. You can find our website at www.iaah.org, follow us on Twitter @IAAHglobal, email us at secretariat@iaah.org and like our Facebook page.

About the Congress and the Host Institutions

Since 1987, the IAAH (www.iaah.org) has organized a World Congress on Adolescent Health every four years. The 11th IAAH World Congress on Adolescent Health is hosted by MAMTA Health Institute for Mother and Child (MAMTA) in association with consortium partners Pathfinder International, Population Foundation of India, Population Services International and the YP Foundation and with scientific and professional association partners, the Public Health Foundation of India (PHFI), the Indian Academy of Pediatrics (IAP), the Federation of Obstetric and Gynecological Societies of India (FOGSI) and the Trained Nurses Association of India (TNAI). The World Congress is being hosted under the supportive leadership of Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, Government of India.

The World Congress will focus on the health and wellbeing of 10-24 year olds. It includes attention to:

- Positive youth development, enabling social environments (including gender norms), and other social determinants of health;
- The breadth of health outcomes facing young people: injuries, interpersonal violence, communicable diseases, non-communicable diseases including mental health problems, substance use, and sexual and reproductive health (including STIs, HIV and pregnancy);
- Equity, including attention to age and gender, and to adolescents including those who are LGBTI, disabled, homeless, sex workers or exploited by the sex trade, youth in detention or stateless;
- The range of settings in which young people live and learn and work, and the various platforms available to deliver interventions (eg health facilities, schools, communities, social media, e and m health, and legal frameworks);
- The value of multisector actions and of engaging multiple stakeholders, including government officials and other policy makers, the United Nations community, NGOs, clinicians, public health practitioners, social scientists and researchers and young people themselves.

MAMTA Health Institute for Mother and Child (MAMTA, www.mamta-himc.org) is an Indian non-profit institution that was founded in 1990. It began working with underprivileged communities in an urban slum in New Delhi, and today works in 19 states of India and in South & South East Asia on maternal and child health, HIV, adolescent sexual and reproductive health and rights and non-communicable diseases (NCDs), mental health with growing involvement in adolescent health policies and programmes regionally and internationally. It is part of many national and state-level technical and policy think tanks.

Population Foundation of India (PFI, www.populationfoundation.in) is a national NGO and think tank which advocates for the effective formulation and implementation of gender-sensitive population, health and development strategies and policies. It works with the government and with NGOs in the areas of health, scaling-up of successful pilots and social and behaviour change communication.

Population Services International (PSI, www.psi.org) is a global health organization working in reproductive health, HIV, child survival, non-communicable diseases and sanitation. Partnering with the public sector and harnessing the power of markets, PSI provides life-saving products, services and communications that empower vulnerable populations to lead healthier lives.

Pathfinder International (www.pathfinder.org) expands access to contraception, promotes healthy pregnancies, saves women's lives, and stops the spread of new HIV infections, going wherever the need is most urgent.

The YP Foundation (www.theypfoundation.org) is a youth run and led organisation that supports and develops youth leadership to advance the rights of young women, girls and other marginalised youth. TYPF runs programmes and influence policies in the areas of gender, sexuality, health, education and governance.

Welcome Message from the IAAH President

Welcome to the 11th World Congress of the International Association for Adolescent Health (IAAH) where, together with nearly 1000 delegates from 65 countries, we will spend the next few days exploring the theme of Investing in Adolescent Health - the Future is Now. Celebrating its 30th anniversary this year, IAAH has long championed youth participation; I am especially pleased to also welcome 125 youth delegates from across the world.

This World Congress would not have been possible without our host partners. On behalf of the IAAH Council, I wish to warmly acknowledge Dr Sunil Mehra, Executive Director, MAMTA Health Institute for Mother and Child, and thank him and his highly capable staff who have contributed to every aspect of the World Congress. I also sincerely thank the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, Government of India for their support. I would like to extend thanks to our consortium partners (Pathfinder International, Population Foundation of India, Population Services International and the YP Foundation); and our scientific and professional association partners (the Indian Academy of Pediatrics, the Public Health Foundation of India, the Federation of Obstetric and Gynecological Societies of India, and the Trained Nurses Association of India).

A major vote of thanks goes to the members and chairs of the four Congress Committees. I am particularly indebted to Dr David Ross and Professor Pierre-Andre Michaud who have tirelessly chaired the International Scientific Committee that has overall responsibility for the programme. I would also like to acknowledge the terrific work of the National Organising Committee and the efforts of the previous IAAH president, Bruce Dick, who played a major role in this meeting until he had to step down in late 2016 due to sudden illness.

Huge thanks goes to the many different sponsors who have contributed in so many different ways: this World Congress would simply not have been possible without your support.

We are also delighted that so many UN agencies and international NGOs are joining us in New Delhi, both as individual delegates as well as through hosting parallel and satellite symposia.

But, most of all, I want to thank you for coming to the World Congress. We hope you will enjoy the programme and related events and exhibitions, and will participate in the many opportunities for both formal and informal discussion and exchange of ideas. One of our goals is that you will leave the World Congress feeling re-invigorated and re-inspired in your efforts to improve the health of adolescents and young people wherever you live.

Once again, welcome to the 11th World Congress on Adolescent Health and to New Delhi, a wonderfully vibrant, colourful - and youthful - city.

Professor Susan Sawyer
President, International Association for Adolescent Health

Welcome Message from the Chair of the National Organising Committee

It gives me immense pleasure to welcome you to this 11th World Congress on Adolescent Health that is being held under the aegis of the International Association for Adolescent Health and hosted by MAMTA Health Institute for Mother and Child along with our consortium partners.

The implications of adolescent health across the life course are increasingly recognised, as are the financial returns from investing in adolescent health. Adolescents constitute 21% of the global population and India is home to more than 253 million adolescents. The time to improve adolescent health is now – efforts must be made for this generation if India is to reap the potential benefit of this demographic dividend. And the policy context is also now, given the shift from the MDGs to the SDGs, and the Global Strategy for Women's Children's and Adolescents' Health.

This World Congress on Adolescent Health therefore comes at a critical time. It provides an opportunity to learn and share from the vast body of experience that will be brought to Delhi to deliberate and consider future directions. The scientific programme for the World Congress has been put together by a galaxy of international and national experts which reflects both global and regional adolescent health needs.

This World Congress would not have been possible without the active engagement and support from the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, India, our consortium partners, various UN agencies and our funders.

And I give my profuse thanks to colleagues at MAMTA who have worked so hard towards the success of this World Congress.

Thank-you for joining us this week. And on behalf of the National Organising Committee and the International Association for Adolescent Health, I welcome you to this wonderful city.

Dr. Sunil Mehra
Chair, National Organising Committee, 11th World Congress on Adolescent Health
Executive Director, MAMTA Health Institute for Mother and Child

Floor Plan (Lower Ground Floor)

Sightseeing in Delhi

Qutub Minar: Qutub Minar is an excellent example of Afghan Architecture. The Minar is a 72.5metres high victory tower, the construction of which was started in the final year of the twelfth century by Qutubuddin Aibak and was later completed by his successor. It has been given World Heritage Site status.

Gandhi Smriti: The Memorial includes Visual Aspects to perpetuate the memory of Mahatma Gandhi and the noble ideals he represented, Educative Aspects to focus concentrated attention on the values that made Gandhi a "Mahatma", and Services. On display in the Museum are photographs, sculptures, paintings, frescos, inscriptions on rocks and relics pertaining to the years Mahatma Gandhi spent here. The meagre personal effects of Gandhiji are carefully preserved and exhibited.

Red Fort: Built by Shahjahan, the builder of the Taj Mahal in Agra. The construction lasted from 1639 to 1648. The Red Fort is closed on Mondays, while the Old Fort is only open on Mondays.

Rajghat: This simple square platform of black marble marks the place where the father of the Nation, Mahatma Gandhi, was cremated.

Humayun's Tomb: Built by Humayun's widow, Queen Haji Begum in the 16th century, it is reputed to have been the prototype of the Taj Mahal at Agra.

Swaminarayan Akshardham Temple: Thought to be the epitome of Indian culture, spirituality and architecture, Swaminarayan Akshardham Temple is a Hindu temple built in 2005. Sitting near the banks of the Yamuna river, the temple showcases Hinduism and its age old culture. Dedicated to Lord Swaminarayan, Akshardham is in the Guinness Book of World Records as the World's Largest Comprehensive Hindu Temple.

Lotus temple: Commonly known as Lotus temple, it is a Bahá'í House of Worship. The Lotus Temple is open to all, regardless of religion or any other distinction. It is situated near Mandir Marg in Kalkaji, New Delhi.

Shopping in Delhi

Delhi is a hub for shopping. From the oldest to the latest, you can buy every kind of clothing you want. Shopping in Delhi can be utterly extravagant or amazingly inexpensive. India's capital city is among the most exciting places to buy textiles (fabric as well as ready-to-wear clothes), jewellery, shoes, bags, leather, carpets, handicrafts, traditional and contemporary Indian art and curios. Several leading designers have boutiques and showrooms in Delhi.

Among many other places, Sadar Bazaar specializes in wholesale goods for daily use; Nehru Place for electronic goods; and Karol Bagh for traditional clothing. Sarojini Nagar and Lajpat Nagar are two local markets in Delhi. Connaught Place, Chawri Bazaar, Chandni Chowk, Khan Market, Greater Kailash M Block Market, Ambience Mall, Select City Walk Mall, Pacific Mall, etc. are other shopping precincts in Delhi. Janpath is a great place for bargain hunting, with kiosks selling cotton clothes, curios, silver jewellery and brassware. Central Cottage Industries Emporium (CCIE) is a good 'one-stop-shop' to explore handicrafts from different parts of India. On Baba Kharak Singh Marg, there are several state handicraft emporia, which provide an opportunity to see a wide range of woodcarving, painting, sculpture and other arts of India. Shopping tip: Bargain as much as you can when it comes to street markets. Also take care of your belongings while shopping.
